Background

I bring to the role of Environmental Dispute Resolution Practitioner, extensive experience and training in agriculture, natural resource management, environmental regulation and dispute resolution.

With more than twenty years of practice in dispute resolution I have experience that covers natural resource, neighbour, property, workplace and community disputes. In case appraisal, I am experienced at identifying and obtaining the contributions of parties to the appraisal task, the application of sound environmental and resource management practices, and balancing the interests of respective parties in framing access and compensation agreements. Where required, I will engage and work with others who bring expertise in agribusiness and valuation.

Working professionally in Queensland as a Certified Environmental Practitioner, I have a good understanding of the context in which agri-business, resource companies and governments undertake resource development and environmental activities.

As a former environmental regulator, I have experience in environmental planning, environmental management and cultural heritage management in multiple jurisdictions. I am experienced in the environmental regulation of the mining and gas industries in Queensland. I hold an appointment as an Adjunct Associate Professor at Griffith University in the School of Environment and Science.

I can provide the following services:

- Mediation between disputing parties (pre and post filing of matters in court)
