Background

I bring to the role of mediator and case appraiser, extensive experience and training in agriculture, natural resource management, environmental regulation and dispute resolution.

With more than twenty years of practice in dispute resolution I have experience that covers natural resource, neighbour, property, workplace and community disputes. In case appraisal, I am experienced at identifying and obtaining the contribution of others to the appraisal task.

Having worked in regional Queensland, I have a good understanding of the context in which agri-business, resource companies and governments undertake resource development and environmental activities. As an independent director and deputy chair of the board of an environmental services company I am familiar with commercial business needs and operations.

As a former senior environmental regulator, I have experience in environmental planning, environmental management and cultural heritage management in multiple jurisdictions. I am experienced in the environmental regulation of the mining and gas industries in regional Queensland. I am a sessional lecturer in environmental management at Griffith University.
