Notes to offender:

Penalty: If you contravene a Control Order you commit an offence against this Act, and will be liable to a penalty of imprisonment for up to three years for the first offence in relation to the order, or imprisonment for up to five years for a later offence in relation to the order.

It does not matter whether the contravention of a Control Order happens in or outside of Queensland.

It is a defence for you to prove that you had a reasonable excuse for contravening a Control Order

Search and Seize particular things: If a police officer seizes a thing that you are prohibited from possessing under this Control Order, the seized thing must be kept in the custody of the Commissioner of Police while the order remains in force and returned to you when the Control Order stops having effect, if you are entitled to lawful possession of the prohibited thing but for the existence of a Control Order.

Within seven days of the making of a Control Order your premises may be entered and searched by police and any things prohibited under the Control Order seized.

Duration of the order: If you are detained in custody on remand or serve a term of imprisonment while a Control Order is in force, the Control Order is suspended for the period you are detained or imprisoned.

Application to amend or revoke the order: You may make an application to amend or revoke the Control Order, only on the ground that you can no longer reasonably comply with the order, and your inability to comply with the order is because of a material change in your circumstances since the order was made.
